Is there any guidance on looking after it?	Download our top tips for Allotment holders, for tips and hints on looking after your new plot. You can also refer to the Rent Agreement.
Are there rules on things I can and can't do on the allotment?	You are expected to maintain your plot in a good condition at all times and there are regular inspections to ensure this is done. The Tenancy Agreement contains a list of things you are expected to do as well as restrictions on certain activities.
Can I put a shed on my plot?	With the prior approval of the Council , you may erect one of the following: a polytunnel of maximum dimensions 10ft x 15ft, a polycarbonate or plastic greenhouse (no glass) of maximum dimensions 8ft x 6ft or a prefabricated shed of maximum 6ft x 4ft. Small storage containers for tools and "fruit cages" are permitted. Only temporary fixings shall be used for any structure.
What happens if I can't look after it as much as I'd hoped?	If at any time the regular plot inspections find that your plot is below the expected standard the Town Council will contact you to advise you of this, ask you to put it right and tell you how long you have to do so. If you still find yourself unable to comply at the end of this time then you will be asked to give up the plot.
Can I pass it on to a friend to look after for me?	No. The plot is allocated to one person within a household and sub-letting is not permitted.
If I already have a plot, can I have another one?	No. Due to the extensive waiting list, vacant plots will be allocated to the waiting list.
